REPORT OF DELEGATES

Regular Monthly Meeting of the Board of Trade. Last Night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night, when the report of the delegates who interviewed the Ontario and Dominion governments on different matters regarding the district was presented. Following is the report:—

Rat Portage, Ont., April 2nd 1902. To the President and Members of the Board of Trade for the District of Rainy River.

Gentlemen,—Your delegates as directed by you, proceeded to Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, to lay before the governments and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the various matters with which you had been intrusted. Mr. L. C. Christie, president of the Fort Frances Agricultural Society, accompanied the deputation, as the Rainy River Valley are vitally interested in many of the subjects discussed.

At Toronto, we again urged the importance of storage dams for the purpose to regulate the stage of water in the Rainy River and the Lake of the Woods, and pointed out the great benefit that such works would be to navigation. We asked that Ash Rapids be improved, so as to allow steamers to ply between the Lake of the Woods and Shoal Lake, and that government docks be built at various points along the Rainy River to facilitate the hauling of goods to and from these places. The necessity of a bridge to replace the old punt on the river, where the collection of tolls was a great annoyance to the people, was also urged.

At Ottawa, we were met by Mr. W. A. G. Cameron, Minister of the Interior, and Mr. D. C. Cameron, Minister of the Public Works. We presented our report and urged the importance of the various matters discussed.

At Montreal, we were met by Mr. J. B. Fraser, Minister of the Interior, and Mr. J. B. Fraser, Minister of the Public Works. We presented our report and urged the importance of the various matters discussed.

partment, there was not much time lost in presenting the case. The hour had come when the government must either proceed with the work or say they would not do it, and it was soon made apparent that the latter course had been decided upon, for this year at any rate, as the appropriation which has been in the estimates for some years passed, had been allowed to drop, and the Minister said, that he realized the importance of the work, and as much as he would like to do it, the Government's determination to retrench, made it utterly impossible to vote any sum for the commencement of the work this season.

Your resolution and the secretary's letter containing the appointment of Messrs. Cameron and Dewey, as a special committee to prepare a resolution regarding the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., "La Cote" extension, did not reach the deputation until after they had left Ottawa, and as there was therefore nothing done in this direction we would suggest that the Board communicate as early as convenient with the Honorable the Minister of railway.

An interview was held in Montreal with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, when matters respecting the welfare of the district were discussed. Sir Thomas took a keen interest in the future of everything western and promised to remain over at Rat Portage, when on his trip across the continent, in the early summer.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Geo. A. Graham,
D. C. Cameron,
George Dewey.

THE DOCUMENTS SIGNED

The Town Council Agrees to Buy the Electric Light Plant.

An agreement was reached this afternoon between the town council and the Citizen's Telephone & Electric Co., whereby the town will shortly come into possession of the plant of the company.

For several weeks the two parties to the settlement have been trying to reach an amicable agreement, but till today were the points in dispute. The value of the plant is to be determined by two valuers, one appointed by the company, and the other by the town. On points of dispute a third valuator is to give decision. The price agreed on is to be binding on both parties. In addition to the price fixed by the valuers the town also agrees to pay an additional 12 per cent.

The agreement though not all that the town would have liked is certainly not all that the company could have had, but is nevertheless a fair and amicable arrangement.

Winnipeg papers state that negotiations are in progress in that city for the purchase of several promising mining claims situated in the boundary district. If the deal goes through development work on a large scale will be commenced at an early date. The claims in the boundary district are well defined, and the assays in some cases have given phenomenal values. A number of Rat Portagers have claims in that vicinity which they hold in large figures.

CANADA PROUD OF THEM.

It is hard to know the value of the Canadian who stood their ground at Harts River without offending the shouters against militarism. The circumstances which tried the mettle of Lieut. Bruce Carruthers and his troops constituted a searching test of manhood. The manhood of the soldier may not be the highest expression of native worth. No country can afford to disregard the qualities of resourcefulness, courage, of unquenchable obstinacy which illumined the scene of Canadian heroism at Harts River.

Canada is not a nation of soldiers except in the sense that the best men make the best soldiers. The country has a right to glory, and will glory in the exploit of the handful of troopers who fought the enemy until every officer and man was killed or wounded. —Toronto Telegram.

EXPERIENCES WITH VOYAGERS ON AWAY BACK WATERS.

The Yearning for the Woods Is a Fever in the Blood of Both White Men and Savage—Through an Indian Hunting Ground—A Good Word for the Indian Voyageur—The title, "Canadian Voyageur," in the course of it he writes as follows:

An interesting account of experiences in the Canadian forests is given by a writer for The Empire Review, under the title, "Canadian Voyageur." In the course of it he writes as follows: But to those who know the smell of the balsam and the aroma of the twisted cedar, who have seen the infinite cliffs, the hollow canyons and the dashing cascades of the Canadian northland, the yearning for the woods is not one which passes understanding. The fever is still in the blood though the breed has changed. The courages de bois were a lost legion of the French regime, but they were simple builders, after their kind, who stayed not for forest nor torrid, but pressed north, west and south, to spread the Gallic lilies over half a continent. To-day the Canadian voyageur is the scout of another empire. Still resolutely he pierces the sub-Arctic wilderness, and paddles his birch bark into unknown waters. The rulers of the old regime set themselves against the woodland fever. To-day the government turns it to account by organizing and despatching exploring parties into that vast country lying between Hudson Bay and the Great Lakes.

Expeditions of this kind are naturally through an Indian hunting ground, but in that broad district stretching from Labrador to the Lake of the Woods, where once the populous Montagnais, Algonquins, and Pettauwattamis roamed, the tribes are few and far between. A century of commercial hunting and trapping has made the peltries scarce and now the struggling natives are selling their birthright for a mess of pottage. The aborigines are surely passing with the game. Hunger and exposure, bring consumption, and it is now rare to find an Indian whose lungs are sound.

It was about 5 o'clock on a June morning that our small fleet of canoes pushed off in the rain from the south shore of Lake Helen, and a paddle of three miles brought us to the Narrows; 9 miles further up we came to Camp Alexander, where, at the foot of the miles of rapids, the first chute on that magnificent waterway, which is also the most trout stream in the world. Here, in a blinding rainstorm, we pitched our tents, and, besides the discomfort of being wet, we were ravaged that night by mosquitoes. All the next day, and the next, we waded over the portage through the mud, weighed down by loads ranging from 100 to 200 pounds, according as we were whites or Indians. The perfect or seasoned packman, the man who has never had a pack strap across his forehead or staggered a mile or so under a hundredweight of pemican will know but faintly of the joy of a two-mile portage or the perspiration which attend it.

AFTER MUCH HONOR.

Emperor's Grave Claims Friend of Emperor—Francis Joseph of Austria—Died in London of Hunger.

An obscure grave in Edmonstone burial ground hides a life tragically more than passing interest. In it lies interred Samuel Back, who a few years ago was one of the leading men in the Hebrew congregation at Jerusalem.

It is no uncommon thing in London for men to die of hunger, and that was virtually the terrible fate of Back.

Thirty years ago his father Eisen Back, was one of the foremost and wealthiest men in Jerusalem, and when he died the son succeeded to his honors and emoluments. It is of record that when Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria visited Jerusalem he passed through its ancient streets arm-in-arm with Eisen Back, and there is little doubt that the son at the same time was honored with the Emperor's attentions.

But a change came, when Samuel Back lost his fortune in building operations, and he wandered across Europe, a broken and dejected man, leaving behind him in the land of his fathers his wife and daughter.

Reaching London a year ago, he drifted to the East-end, where, in Dunk street, one of the gloomy byways near Black Lane, he hired a squalid room and attempted to gain a livelihood by the sale of little photographic albums of Jerusalem. He spoke no English, made few sales of his wares, and slowly starved.

But to the last he never gave up the idea of returning to Jerusalem. He would go back in the summer, he said.

During severe weather, and at all times when it was impossible for him to be out of doors, he spent the time in reading religious books, for he was very devout in his faith.

A few days ago Back was knocked down by a van in Commercial street and cruelly hurt. The weakened condition of his system from lack of food prevented recovery, and he died in the London Hospital at the age of 60, after months of abject poverty that followed years of honor and opulence.

THE NEWEST STORY.

Was Lord Salisbury Accepted in the Highest Legal Circles.

The very newest Salisbury story, and one which is accepted in the highest legal circles, is strikingly illustrative (says M.A.P.) of the Premier's isolation and small grasp of features. An elderly Liberal-Unionist baronet, of recent creation and of somewhat Lilliputian stature, was among the considerable number of invited guests at last summer's garden party at Hatfield. In the course of the afternoon Lord Salisbury laid hold of the baronet's arm, saying, "I want a quiet word with you." It was at the time of one of the "respectable incidents" of the campaign, and the guest who had just returned from a hasty visit to South Africa, was delighted, though scarcely surprised, to find that the Premier's next remark, as they turned aside, showed a keen desire to obtain his views on the situation. The baronet once poured forth his criticisms on the recent events of the war with the freedom and certainty that are the characteristics

It had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one tea-spoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing. So I continued taking it. I had been a great sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. The Peanut in London.

Noting the introduction of the huxed peanuts in London, The Pall Mall Gazette observes: "We do not know whether that excellent feature of British civilization, the hot potato, flourishes on winter nights at the street corners of New York. Probably it does, but if it does not there should be an opening for some good Southern product, such as a business to show our cousins that they have not got a monopoly of good things. However, we welcome the peanut, more familiar to us as the monkey nut, as a highly desirable immigrant and have no doubt that he has come to stay."

The baronet at once poured forth his criticisms on the recent events of the war with the freedom and certainty that are the characteristic of the civilian, and the Premier bore him with by far the most honest conversation of the whole afternoon. On rejoining the family group, his nephew remarked to Lord Salisbury: 'I am particularly glad that you recognized Sir—, but what did you find to talk about for so you mean?' 'I don't know what you mean,' was the reply, 'I never spoke to the man in my life. I have just been having a long and important talk with Lord Roberts. Premier "Dick" Seddon.

"Dick" Seddon, as the Prime Minister of New Zealand is known, was once manager of a canteen at a miners' camp. Of the turning point in his life an anecdote is told which may be regarded as an illustration of the sort of hold which he has upon the people of New Zealand. A dispute occurred between the miners of two districts. The miners of one camp wished to settle the matter by the ordeal of battle, and accordingly sent their chosen representative to fight the other with a challenge to fight the best man. The champion of the challengers had triumphed over the miners in both camps, and was only chosen now in the belief that his prowess would intimidate the enemy. This effect, it seemed likely to have, until "Dick" Seddon offered to fight the bully in his comrades' cause. Fight he did, and won such a victory as made him the hero henceforth of the whole camp.

Feeding the Cobras.

The keepers of the big cobras in the Central park menagerie and the New York Zoological garden do not find it easy to supply their voracious charges with the kind of food that they specially prefer. In their native land cobras live chiefly on smaller and less dangerous and objectionable snakes, but although every effort is made to collect harmless snakes to satisfy the appetite of the imprisoned cobras at some seasons they have to be content with rats and mice, which they do not particularly like. Other varieties of captive snakes are fed mainly on toads, mice and rabbits. English sparrows are also purchased for them.

Eating an Orange.

When oranges are cut across and eaten with a spoon somewhat of their naturalness seems gone. It is an artificial way of eating this fruit, but often proves the most convenient. The way in which the juice flies is one of the drawbacks to this method. By taking a knife and cutting a little circle around the core in the center this tendency of the juice to fly is largely counteracted. Some fastidious people never cut their oranges across and never use a spoon, but instead cut them in eighths with the skin on and sip the juice from these little portions.

The Phoenix of Arabia.

In olden times a bird called a "phoenix" was thought to live in the deserts of Arabia. His lease of life was said to be 500 years, at the end of which time he built a nest of spices and fanned it into a flame with his wings. The flame reduced the bird to ashes, out of which he sprang to live another 500 years. Richardson says that he had dirty orifices in his book, through which he sung melodious airs.

His Talk.

"What will I talk about?" remarked a man who had been called on unexpectedly at a banquet and mentally groped for something to say.

"Talk about a minute!" was the rejoinder that came from a nimble witted chap at the other side of the dining room.

Horses and Color.

As regards color, gray horses live longest, roan horses nearly as long. Cream colored horses are deficient in staying power, especially in summer weather. Bays, on an average, are the best. Horses with black hoofs are stronger and tougher than others.
